Overseas Expert Column by Naohiro Goda

Allowance for two-time winning 4YO and upper at 2000m turf track at Tokyo. It is small field of only five runners.

My favourite is SIMHANADA by REY DE ORO. He made successful racecourse debut on 6th July, when he won maiden over 2000m turf track at Fukushima, and collected his second win at Tokyo on 26th October, when he won Allowance for one-time winners at same course and same distance as this race. And he finished second in Allowance for two-time winners at Tokyo on 16th February, covering final three furlongs for 33.3 seconds, which was the quickest in 13 runners. I think it was a good performance and he should have a good chance to win as he re-produces that form on Sunday. Although he was beaten fifth in his last start at Nakayama on 2nd March, I have a feeling that Nakayama is not a suitable track for him and he should run much better at Tokyo on Sunday.

My second choice is AVENIR DE BRILLER. The well-bred horse by EPIPHANEIA finished second in Listed Principal Stakes, one of important prep races for G1 Japanese Derby, at Tokyo on 6th May 2023 and we thought he should have bright future. Although he has not met the expectation, he finished second in Allowance for two-time winners at same course and same distance as this race on 2nd February, which was a good performance. While he was beaten 5th in his last start at Tokyo on 26th April, he had traffic problem on home stretch and I reckon it was another goof effort from him.

My third choice is PINKY PROMISE by GOLD SHIP. While he does not have sharp turn of foot, he has sustainable speed, which he should have inherited from his sire. His performance in summer is better than in winter, and I am sure his condition has been improving in recent warm climate. This is not so competitive field and I reckon he should have good chance to finish within first three on Sunday.

SELECTIONS: 1. SIMHANADA, 3. AVENIR DE BRILLER & 4. PINKY PROMISE

Debuted in summer of his 3-year-old season but quickly won two in a row to reach this class. He possesses a strong turn of foot but his most recent run at Nakayama can be excused, as he had nowhere to go in the stretch. With only five starts under his belt, he still has room to improve and looks capable of competing at a higher level.

His runner-up effort two starts back over this course and distance showed his true ability. The extra furlong from last start should work in his favor, and if the track comes up a bit slower, his chances will improve.

Secured second over 2000 meters at Niigata last summer on slightly yielding ground, suggesting he can handle a bit of cut in the track. The smaller field this time should allow him to secure a good position early, which works in his favor. His condition has improved with the rise in temperature, and in this field, he shouldn't be overlooked.

The half-brother to the 2021 Japanese Oaks champion Uberleben. His fifth-place finish over this course and distance in February could be worth a look. Has a decent turn of foot. If the track turns up testing, he may be capable of improvement.
