Overseas Expert Column by Brett Davis

JENNILALA returned to racing at the top level in the G1 Sir Rupert Clarke Stakes but was outclassed and in need of the run following a long spell. Nevertheless, she got to work over the final meters of the G3 Catanach's Jewellers Vase (Ladies Day Vase) second up and chased home the exciting OH TOO GOOD. She then settled mid-field and received a comfortable run in the G3 Tesio Stakes but the big weight made it tough to reel in the leaders. She's now ready to peak, completely adores the Flemington track and better positioned against many of the opposition at the weights.

SHE'S A HUSTLER went to Moonee Valley recently for her first start at G3 level and easily accounted for the opposition in the 2040m G3 Tesio Stakes. She's yet to finish further back than second from her total of nine starts and has returned to racing this campaign with an outstanding undefeated record. A second run over the longer distance is an additional positive sign and it's difficult to envisage her having issues with the rise in class to G2 company. She is required to shoulder a little extra weight but is the horse to beat.

SEA WHAT I SEE won six consecutive races as a younger mare so she's always had her fair share of depth and class. She also had a year away from racing leading into this current campaign which would suggest better is still to come. Her return to the winners circle in the Gold Nugget Handicap at Ballarat was an encouraging and gritty display before over-working on speed in the G3 Catanach's Jewellers Vase (Ladies Day Vase). A good heady ride from Craig Williams in the G3 Tesio Stakes at Moonee Valley saw her produce a career best rating last start.

ALALCANCE resumes from a freshen up after an early September return to spring in the listed Wyong Cup. She found plenty of bother and traffic that afternoon and consequently we didn't get to see the best of her at any stage. The 2000m races go the better she generally gets, in particularly, if she's able to lead under her own steam. Her class is likely to stand up strongly under the weight structure of this event so she cannot be dismissed or discounted.

SUNSET PARK ran above herself finishing third in the G3 Tesio Stakes at Moonee Valley last start and on that performance must be included in exotics. Melbourne Cup winning jockey Jamie Melham now takes over the ride and they'll look to roll forward from the wide draw. She'll be required to produce a career best to feature for the win but was able to bring that improvement to her most recent start.
