Overseas Expert Column by Brett Davis

STOLI BOLLI has been a model of consistency all season but just keeps finding one better on the day. James McDonald now jumps back on board with the pair having already gone close to victory on two occasions this campaign. There are numerous candidates you can make a solid case for in the last event of the day but he's the horse with the most ticks, and the runner you keep coming back to.

ACTUALITY is one of many talented individuals in the stable of trainers Peter G Moody & Katherine Coleman and is expected to end up better than this class. She's an exceptionally well-bred filly that continues to improve with her recent win at Seymour another encouraging forward step. She's drawn well for ace rider Craig Williams and has previously performed with credit over this exact course and distance.

YALDI began his career in New Zealand before arriving to Australia in May. He then produced an encouraging effort first up over 1400m, here at Flemington, whilst shouldering a big weight on a partially rain affected track. He's been an honest contributor right throughout his short career and there are arrows pointing in his direction to suggest he can run a good race.

BALASTIER has won his last three starts, and four in total, from just eight attempts. He's a fast beginning fellow that burns along at speed whilst also providing stamina at the other end. He's yet to reach his full potential, so we don't know yet how good he actually is, but a straight 1100m race at Flemington is the ideal way to find out.

FISSION has built a formidable record over previous campaigns and can be included amongst discussions. He's enjoyed three runs back this preparation following a lengthy spell and improved each performance on the clock. There's plenty of depth to this field so it won't be an easy race to win, but he's perfectly prepared, ready to salute and likely to run around at a price.

SELECTIONS: 6. STOLI BOLLI, 16. ACTUALITY, 9. YALDI, 10. BALASTIER & 8. FISSION
